More Fish Added to Canyon Club by State Department

L. A. Proctor, deputy game warden, was here Friday with another truck load of fish which were added to the streams of the county. 1800 were placed in the Country Club under the direction of S. H. Condron. This makes 4,000 fish which have been added to the Canyon Club this year, and the federal hatcheries will send more in a few weeks.

Mr. Condron believes that farmers along the Tierra Blanca and Palo Duro should build more dams in order to produce additional fishing places. Those who have made such provisions are finding them quite profitable. Keeping the places clear of weeds and moss, and killing of the turtles will soon develop splendid fishing places.

Relief Work at Buffalo Courts Is Authorized

Fifty Men Put to Work Tuesday After Lay Off in Labor During the Month

Fifty men were put to work Tuesday on Buffalo Courts from the local relief office when appeal was made Monday by Coach Al Baggett to the district office at Amarillo for men to complete this work.

The men will work 40 hours this week, and indications are that 40 hours will be allowed them next week.

This is the first work that has been given men on the relief rolls since the middle of July.

The new district supervisor expressed great interest in the Buffalo Courts project and would do every thing possible to keep men at work until it is finished.

Coach Baggett has about 50 boys who must be housed in the Courts with the opening of W. T. Every possible means will be taken to rush the work so that these boys may be housed comfortably in the new quarters.

VOTERS FAVOR FIVE CHANGES CONSTITUTION

Two Rejected in Vote of State Held on Last Saturday

LIGHT VOTE CAST

Randall Votes in Favor Retention Prohibition Measure

Less than 1,000 voters in Randall county went to the polls in Randall county Saturday to pass judgment upon the seven constitutional amendments.

The largest vote in favor of any of the amendments was cast for the old age pension which had a 3½ to 1 lead. The vote against repeal of prohibition was not quite 2 to 1.

Randall county voters favored only three of the amendments; old age, insanity commitment and repeal of fee system. The others were voted down in this county.

From a state-wide standpoint, only two of the amendments were rejected by the voters: the amendment submission and free text books.

Repeal of prohibition in Texas led by 54,577 votes in a report on Saturday's election issued at noon Wednesday by the Texas Election Bureau.

"We are going to check our figures and if the result is changed any, of course we'll report it," A. F. Henning, manager of the bureau said. "Otherwise this is the final report.

The figures, which included reports from 240 out of the state's 253 counties, with 53 complete, were:

Repeal: For, 262,185; against, 207,608.

Amendment Submission: For 187,062; against, 200,203.

Suspended Sentences: For, 213,-290; against, 180,394.

Textbooks for private schools: For, 205,904; against, 236,755.

Figures on old age pensions, commitment of the insane and fee abolition issued earlier in the day were permitted to stand as final, Henning said, since the vote on them was so overwhelming. These earlier figures were:

Old Age Pensions: For, 369,858; against, 92,982.

Commitment of Insane: For, 255,216; against, 167,223.

Fee Abolition: For, 243,723; against, 155,823.

SATURDAY'S ELECTION

The experience of Saturday put an end to the practice of holding special elections for the purpose of passing upon constitutional amendments. Only 45% of the qualified voters of Texas took the trouble to go to the polls. This means rule by organized minorities, which is a very bad policy in a so-called self-governing democracy.

No one was surprised at the result of the old age pension amendment. As The News pointed out two weeks ago, we expected this amendment to carry, but opposed it because of the fact tthat it left the bars down for every person to receive a pension regardless of his financial circumstances. Unless the legislature takes extreme caution this amendment will cause the passage of a very high sales tax, since this seems to be the only field left open for taxation.

People up in Northwest Texas were surprised that repeal carried. Fact is the wets pulled a very keen political trick which won the election. Without doubt a majority of the people of Texas are against the saloon. The wets knew this and decided upon a defensive campaign. They started the whisper that there was no chance for repeal. They spent very little money excepting the paid workers who spread the propaganda that Texas would remain dry. This caught the drys off guard, and thousands of them did not go to the polls, thinking the battle was won. The liquor problems are now in the hands of the wets. We shall see how well they live up to their promises of temperance and law enforcement.

The insanity commitment and probation amendments were the least important and were approved without much discussion. While both have points of merit, both are dangerous in many respects.

Repealing the fee system will have little or no effect in view of the fact that the legislature has limited the fees paid county officers to such an extent that the fee system has been practically abolished.

Probably the two most dangerous amendments were defeated; the one giving the legislature right to submit amendments at special sessions, and the one extending the right of free text books to all private and denominational schools.

Six more constitutional amendments will be submitted to the voters in the general election next year.

Lobbying has become a racket both in the state legislatures and in congress. Citizens as well as corporations have a right to be heard upon any pending legislation which affects their business or their interest. No one wishes to deny any person the right to be heard when bills are pending which affect the future usefulness of any institution. However, the public is much deceived as to the influence of lobbyists. Too many persons are of the opinion that lobbyists actually control legislation and buy up legislators. This cannot be said as a general rule. Most legislators are honest and are above the influence of lobbyists. However, professional lobbyists have taken advantage of the public's misconception and are capitalizing with individuals as well as corporations the so-called necessity of paid lobbyists. These professional lobbyists are exploring those who happen to be the victims of circumstances in which individuals or corporations are influenced to spend huge amounts of money through the lobbyists, most of which is wasted. The trick is simple: the would-be lobbyist influences a legislator to introduce an innocent looking bill; the lobbyist reads a vague meaning into the bill, goes to the individuals or corporation and show them thereby their business is about to be ruined if this bill is passed. Unfortunately most people are ignorant of the machinery of legislation, and the fact that the bill has been introduced leads them to believe that it will become a law unless a lobbyist is employed. Thereby hangs the tale upon which the professional lobbyist sells his services for the purpose of defeating the legislation in question. Nine chances out of ten the bill would never have been reported out of the legislative committee, but the lobbyist scares his client into believing that it is practically the law, and those affected open up a big checking account for the benefit of the lobbyist. Former members of the legislature and of congress are the typical candidates for lobbying jobs. Many of them are totally without scruples when they get a job, and spend their clients' money as freely as water. Lobbying has increased many fold during the past few years. It has truly become a racket in our national life.

With the adjournment of congress, you will hear much praise, and much criticism of the actions of the national law making body until the first of January. This will be campaign time for members of congress, who will be called into session again the first of January. Members seeking re-election must get out among the people during this period. The Republicans have started their campaign against Roosevelt, with indications that the big shots will be fired at the administration at regular intervals during the coming year. The President replied to some of the criticism of his administration Saturday night, but more direct accounting for his work may be expected in his swing across the country this fall.

Time was when war in any portion of the world would indicate improved business in this nation. War was therefore a profitable thing for all classes of American citizens. But the present war scare in Africa is receiving no support in this nation today. America promises to be strictly neutral, after having learned the lesson of the world war when we were called upon to foot the bill. America has nothing to gain in this war. If there is war we shall lose what little market there remains in that section.

Next year will be political year. Many of the state candidates carry with them loud speaking outfits. It has been clearly demonstrated that these are very essential in creating interest in public gatherings. If some local organization could get together funds to buy a system for Canyon it would be greatly appreciated by the citizens.

Those opponents of the President who are crying out about saving the constitution will receive little support in Texas where the state constitution is changed at frequent intervals. Furthermore, the national constitution has been changed more often under Republican than under Democratic rule.

Now that legalized booze will be freely dispensed, Texas must have a drivers' license, one with teeth in it to protect citizens from those who drive while intoxicated. Accidents have greatly increased since beer was legalized; it will increase more with the wide open saloons.

Texas has 9,000 local tax collecting agencies. It is no wonder taxes are such a confusing subject to the average citizen.

Canyon schools will open September 9th. Indications are good for a greatly increased enrollment in the public schools.

Replacing the Big Train as Manager of the Tribe, Fighting Steve O'Neill Faces a Big Chore in Turning the Indians Pennant-ward

BY PHILIP MARTIN

The job of reorganizing the demoralized Cleveland ball club has been dumped in the lap of Steve O'Neill, above, former Indian coach. Shown at left with his favorite dog, O'Neill has a tremendous task before him, but is confident he can transform the Tribe into a winning club.

THE axiom that nothing is so permanent as change applies particularly to the national pastime. Whenever a ball team runs into an extended losing streak, fans invariably lay the entire blame on the shoulders of the manager; sometimes justly, more often unjustly. A new boss usually results from this criticism.

Thus we find smiling Steve O'Neill guiding the destinies of the Cleveland Indians. He replaces the immortal Walter Johnson, whose pitching feats are indelibly engraved in baseball annals, although he never may go down in diamond history as a successful pilot.

In trying to get the Tribe back into winning ways, O'Neill faces a mountainous task.

The team was riddled by injuries, and as the club for the most part is composed of young, inexperienced players, complete demoralization was the outcome. Bitterness on the part of many fans toward Johnson and uncertainty as to who would succeed Old Barney helped to keep the team in a constant state of turmoil.

The outlook is somewhat brighter for O'Neill, however. Perhaps the most important thing in his favor is his popularity with the Cleveland baseball public, a relationship which Johnson never enjoyed.

Steve is a resident of the Sixth City, and as star catcher of the world champion Cleveland team of 1920 is a constant reminder to fans of Cleveland's diamond heyday.

It must also be remembered that many of the younger Tribe stars attained their full minor league growth under O'Neill at Toledo, and they'll do their utmost to win for the genial Irishman.

• • •

LIKE Stanley Harris, boss of the Senators, O'Neill is an ex-miner, haling from Minooka, Pa. Breaking into the big leagues with the Athletics, he was framed out to Worcester, Mass., in 1911.

From there O'Neill migrated to Cleveland, winning himself a part-time job in 1912. The following year he had the receiving job all to himself, and continued in this capacity until 1923.

The following year found him with the Boston Red Sox as result of a trade. The New York Yankees claimed him on waivers in 1925, and there he remained until 1926, when Toronto obtained him for coaching duties under Dan Howley.

Returning to the American League fold in 1927 as a catcher-coach with the St. Louis Browns, he remained throughout the 1928 season. He returned to Toronto as pilot in 1929, 1930, and 1931. The Toledo Mudhens got him as coach in 1932, but he was handed a manager's job in 1933 and 1934.

Last winter the Cleveland Indians signed him as a coach, which duty he faithfully performed until assigned the job of manager following resignation of Walter Johnson.

Arranging to freeze Stephen Simkhovitch, above, and then bring him "back to life" by means of a mysterious formula, Dr. Ralph Willard, below, Los Angeles chemist, drew a withering fire from the Journal of the American Medical Association, which classed the experiment as a "vicious hoax." Simkhovitch, 34, scenario writer, had offered himself for the test, which Dr. Willard claimed he successfully performed with a rhesus monkey.

New, Vast Security Program Lends Added Significance to 1935 Labor Day

FOR the American wage-earner, Labor Day, 1935, has an especial significance. A vast security program, designed to cushion life's hard knocks for the nation's workers, has just been launched and needs only co-operating state laws to begin spreading its benefits. And most states soon are expected to call special sessions to frame those laws.

In signing what he termed a "cornerstone" in a structure "to lessen the force of possible future depressions," President Roosevelt said, impressively, "this measure gives at least some protection to 30,000,000 of our citizens."

How will U. S. workers benefit under the National Security Law?

For one thing, it provides an old age pension system for all workers, other than those engaged in agricultural, domestic or government work.

To build up reserves for these pensions, workers' earnings up to $3000 a year would be taxed at a rate starting at 1 per cent in 1937 and reaching 3 per cent in 1949. Employers will be taxed similarly.

This plan will begin operating in 1942. After that time all qualified workers, upon retirement at the age of 65, will be paid annuities in proportion to their earnings during the years of employment. These annuities will reach from $10 per month to $85, with a probable average, going to workers now in the younger age groups, of from $50 to $65.

This plan is expected to benefit about 25,000,000 workers.

• • •

WHILE the new security law does not set up a federal unemployment compensation system, it does enable the states to do so, in this way. Uncle Sam imposes a uniform payroll tax on employers of eight or more workers. The rate of this tax is 1 per cent for the year 1936; 2 per cent for 1937, and 3 per cent for 1938 and thereafter.

Employers must pay this tax whether or not their states enact job insurance laws. This requirement, it is believed, will stimulate passage of necessary state legislation.

• • •

THE nation's unfortunates will be protected by other features of the bill.

Men and women over 65 who are penniless wards of the public will begin receiving pensions as soon as the states get their systems operating. Up to a limit of $15 per person per month, Uncle Sam will match payments of individual states in creating this fund. The states may, however, if they choose, contribute more than the federal government.

The blind will be pensioned in the same way. In their case, however, funds for diagnosis of eye conditions and for training and employment of the adult blind are also provided.

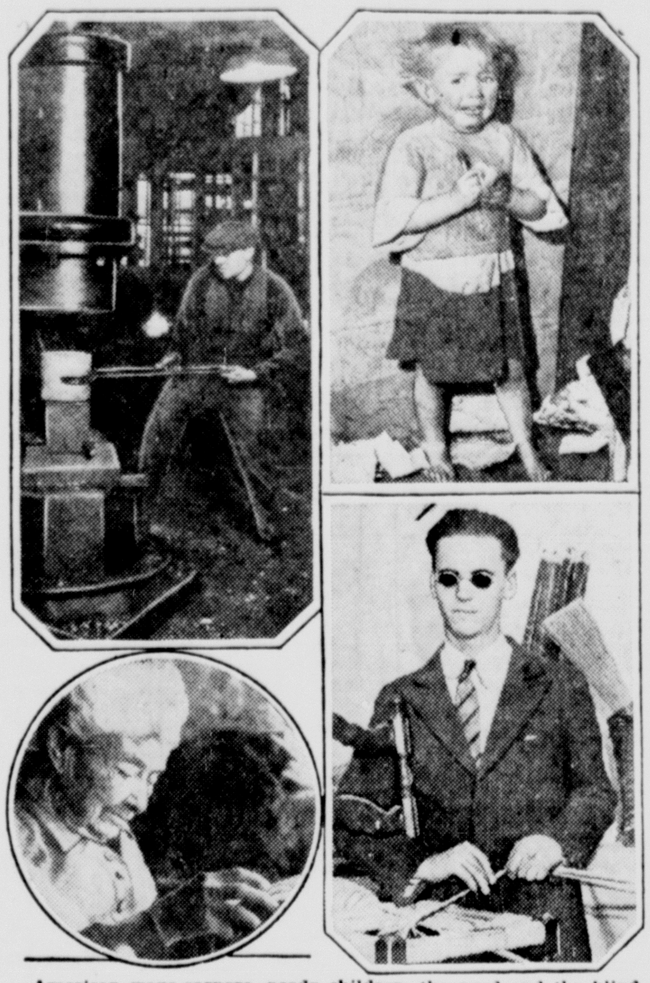
For maternal and child welfare services, $50,000,000 will be appropriated during the first year of the act.

To aid dependent children, Uncle Sam will put up $1 to every $3 provided by the state. The federal limit in this case will be $6 a month.

Additional funds will be supplied the states to aid in promoting the health of mothers and children, and providing medical, surgical and corrective services for needy, crippled children.

Another federal appropriation will benefit homeless and neglected tots. And $2,000,000 will be supplied annually by Uncle Sam to supply the physically disabled with vocations.

Citizens in general will benefit from still another provision of the bill. To help the states build their public health services, especially in rural areas, Uncle Sam will provide $8,000,000 a year.



American wage-earners, needy children, the aged and the blind are among the 30,000,000 U. S. citizens whom, President Roosevelt believes, the National Security Law eventually will safeguard from "life's hazards and vicissitudes."

Tri-State Fair Plans 3-Ring Daily Circus

From both an educational and entertainment standpoint, the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo, September 14-21, will be "tops."

This year the fair holds undisputed rank as the largest exposition in Texas and to entertain the crowds the management has arranged for many attractions, including a three-ring circus.

With this circus, formerly known as Bailey Brothers but now owned by Harley Sadler, well known for his amusement enterprises, is Jack Hoxie, western screen star.

Hoxie, who had the leading role in such pictures as "Outlaw Justice" and "Trouble Busters," will appear in person at each circus performance. One of the favorites of western fans, he also was starred in "Law and Lawless," "Via Pony Express" and "Gun Law."

While giving performances daily at the exposition grounds, the circus will stage a mile long parade every other day—Sept. 16, 18, and 20.

Other entertainment features will be Beckman and Garety shows, largest of midway attractions; daily horse races and a variety of other amusement.

Exhibitors from every section of the exposition's vast territory and many from distant states already have made entries.

Officials of the fair association predict there will not be only more and better exhibits, but also larger crowds at the 1935 exposition.

SPORTS FANS FOLLOW THE AMERICAN BOY

Boys and young men of this city who wish to improve their tennis service, their basket-shooting eyes, their forward passing talent, or their crawl stroke, can enlist the aid of the nation's foremost coaches and players by subscribing to The American Boy magazine and following the sports interviews and fiction stories that appear each month.

"When I was in high school," says a famous decathlon champion, "I read a track article in The American Boy that gave me my first clear-cut idea of the western style of high jumping. At practice I laid the open magazine on the grass and studied it as I worked out. That afternoon I increased the height of my jump three inches."

That was a long time ago, but today thousands of future champions just as eagerly follow The American Boy.

"This year," states Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor, "our staff writers have gone to the two greatest football teams of the country—Minnesota and Pittsburgh—for first-hand tips on strategy, blocking, tackling, passing, and the fine points of play. They have interviewed Jack Medica, the world's fastest swimmer, and his coach, Ray Daughters. Gone to Eastern High School of Washington, D. C., Eastern Interscholastic basketball champions. In the past they have followed the Grapefruit Circuit of the major leagues in Florida, sat on the bench at the Rose Bowl, sought out the famous runners, divers, All-American ends, tackles and backfield men, to bring their story of how to play the game to the young men of America.

"In addition to our fiction, adventure, exploration, hobby counsel, and vocational help, we shall continue to encourage young men to improve their game in every line of sport."

Send your subscription to The American Boy, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. Enclose with your name and address $1 for a year's subscription, $2 for three years, and add 50 cents a year if you want the subscription to go to a foreign address. On newsstands, 10c a copy.

Contrary to the usual rule, the more talking you do, the less it counts.

Value of Character Building Institutions Discussed

The pastors of Canyon were asked to have charge of the Rotary program Tuesday, discussing the value of character building institutions.

Rev. Chas. L. Dickey discussed the schools and the home. "We are not to prove their worth, or give their value, because they are above the value of dollars and cents," stated Mr. Dickey. "No one would live long in a community without these institutions," as he referred to the haste in oil towns and gold camps to establish these institutions.

Mr. Dickey stated without schools there would be no lawyers, doctors, ministers—only ignorance. The home is the developing place of character, the speaker pointing to the fact that Christ stayed 30 years in his home preparing his work. "There is a principle of a little good and a little bad in all of us, and these institutions seek to develop the good," stated the pastor. In closing Mr. Dickey referred to the great tribute which was paid the man who wrote "Home, Sweet Home," 30 years after he had died in Africa and the body was returned to Washington for burial.

Rev. J. R. Hicks, pastor of the Baptist Church, discussed the churches and civic institutions. "No one ever qustions the value of these institutions to a community. They are what the people who compose them are." Mr. Hicks stated that all honor is due the soldier who fights or dies for his country, but asked if it had been war which made America great. If so, then we should have more wars. The speaker asked questions which each listener was asked to answer for himself. Who has contributed to the welfare of the churches and of the community? What am I doing?

Men find their own level in the community. They associate with those whose ideals are their own.

Mr. Hicks denied that youth was the happiest period of life. It is the carefree period, but the richest period of life is its evening, when the harvest is to be realized. The speaker urged men to invest their lives in their schools, homes, churches and civic character building institutions.

Miss Lilla Beth Burroughs resigned as pianist, having accepted a position in the schools at Elida, N. M.

Visitors present were: Chas. K. Chamberlain of Nacogdoches; Tom Nabors of Plainview; Emmett Galloway and Arch Hunsley of Amarillo; Rev. J. R. Hicks of Canyon.

President Sets Dead Line for Closing Up WPA Applications

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26. — A series of deadlines, the first scarcely more than two weeks off, was fixed by President Roosevelt today in a move to complete the allotment of the entire $4,000,000,000 work relief fund by Sept. 24.

This latest attempt to speed up the lagging program was interpreted as eliminating almost all heavy construction projects on which applications have not been submitted, and barring numerous PWA and housing projects earlier slated for approval.

Increased emphasis on Harry L. Hopkins' works progress administration projects, with wider discretion to local administrators, was foreshadowed.

The President's letter, notifying cabinet officers and other work relief agents of this latest policy change, gave these final dates:

Sept. 12, all applications by both local and federal agencies, submitted in final form.

Sept. 17, final meeting of work relief allotment committee.

Sept. 24, all allotments actually made available through approval by the President as well as the Treasury and Comptroller General J. R. McCarl.

Oct. 22, sponsoring agents "prepared" either to begin work on projects to be carried out by direct labor or to have asked for bids on those to be built under contract.

Dec. 15, all contracts to be awarded.

Although President Roosevelt had insisted that "speed is of the essence," only 200,000 work relief jobs have been provided to date, with the exception of Civilian Conservation Corps enlistments, August had been named by Hopkins as the month which would show "a substantial" amount of employment and Nov. 1, as the date for liquidating the relief administration.

At the same time, the President stripped Secretary Ickes of his former absolute power over remaining portions of the $3,700,000,000 public works appropriation.

Belief was expressed in some quarters the works progress administration — already slated to spend between $2,000,000,000 and $2,500,000,000—was the only agency capable of putting on the demanded burst of speed. WPA has received more than $350,000,000 to date and PWA about $130,000,000.

Miss Esther Rudolph arrived in Canyon Monday from Ann Arbor, Mich., where she has been studying this summer in the University of Michigan. She is visiting in the home of her sister, Mrs. Dan K. Usery, while here, and will teach in the new high school at Whittenburg this winter.

Tire for Rough Usage on Worst Roads is Latest

Production of a new, heavy-duty lug-type tread pneumatic balloon tire for trucks, industrial wagons, scrapers, in service in deep mud, snow, broken ground, crushed rock and over sand roads, is announced by Sinclair Station No. 1, the local Goodyear dealer.

The tire, designed and tested to meet the requirements of carrying heavy loads through rough going, has a special tread of diagonal cross bars that maintain constant contact with the ground, take hold and then automatically clean themselves as the tire revolves.

The tread is made with extra tough rubber compounds that resist injury from the obstacles which tear and gouge ordinary truck tires. The body construction includes Goodyear's patented Supertwist cord to provide carcass endurance. A special bead construction gives a combination of additional strength and flexibility.

While the new tire is not intended for high speed highway travel, it can be used satisfactorily on paved roads. Its use, however, is especially for off-the-pavement service as equipment on dirt wagons, road graders, on excavating or construction jobs, in oil field service, on logging operations, in strip mining service and in school bus use on muddy or sandy roads.

Rounded corners and shoulders offer added resistance to snagging, cutting and chewing of the tread. The tire is offered in a complete range of sizes from 6.00-20 to 17.25-24.

Dr. A. M. Meyer Gives Address To Graduates

"Can we adjust to change?" asked Dr. A. M. Meyer in the commencement address to the graduating class of the College Friday. "We're living in an epoch of change," he told the graduates. "We have believed that certain fundamentals would be with us to stay; that our currency was stable, our jobs secure, our political society solid, our credit always good, and that our capitalistic system would weather any storm.

"But in the last quarter of a century there have been vast upheavals, and our machine age has come to an impasse. Since the ratio of change is never the same in very many places at the same time, we have points of tension, danger zones, not only between persons but between large groups. There is the problem: Can we adjust ourselves to this?"

Pres. J. A. Hill introduced the commencement speaker to the class of 130 graduates, the largest summer class ever to have been graduated from W. T. Dr. Meyer was also sponsor of the class.

Music for the graduation ceremonies was played by the Buffalo Orchestra under the direction of Prof. Wallace R. Clark.

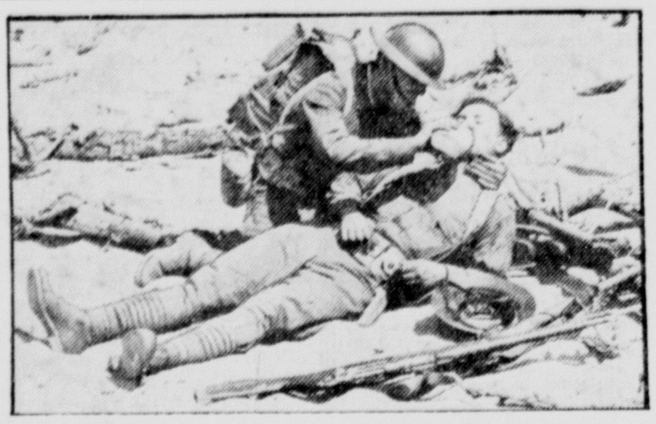
Troops 'Go Over the Top in Great U. S. Mimic War



In an enthusiastic "over the top" attack calculated to quail the stoutest enemy, doughboys participating in the Pine Camp, N. Y., army maneuvers are pictured above as they valiantly charged the "foe." At right, a soldier ministers to his comrade, "wounded" in the attack. Nearly 40,000 troops of the regular army and national guard, concentrated in upper New York State, took part in the war games, said to be the most extensive peacetime maneuvers ever held in America. Observers were reportedly astonished at the demonstration of a modern army's mobility and speed.

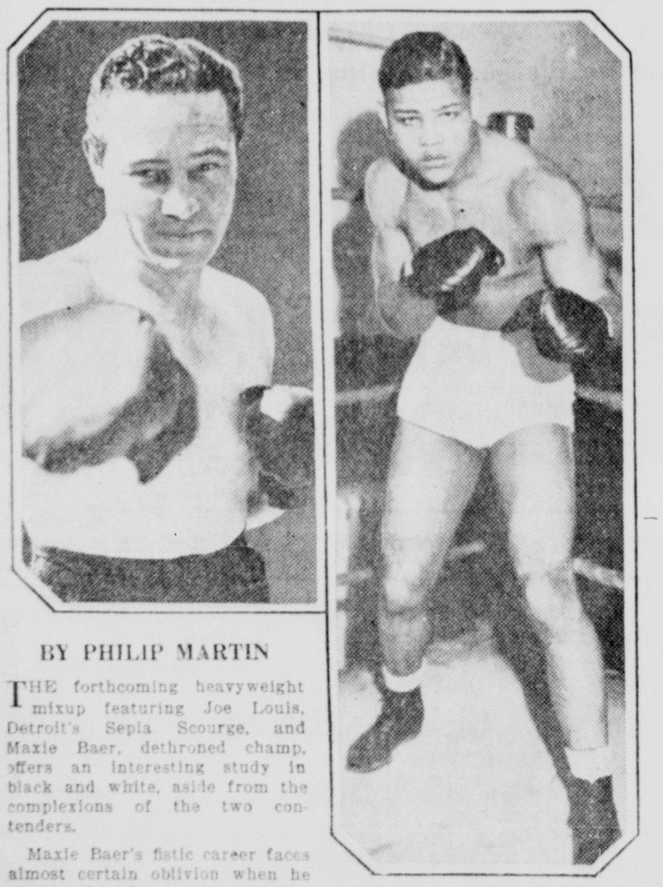
IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

With Louis in Top Fighting Form, and Baer in Somewhat Less Than Peak of Condition, Coming Bout Looks Like Curtains for Maxie



BY PHILIP MARTIN

THE forthcoming heavyweight mixup featuring Joe Louis, Detroit's Sepia Scourge, and Maxie Baer, dethroned champ, offers an interesting study in black and white, aside from the complexions of the two contenders.

Maxie Baer's fistic career faces almost certain oblivion when he meets the fast-moving Detroit shadow in their 15-round melee, scheduled for the latter part of September. On the other hand, Louis' chances for the title have grown brighter with each engagement.

Even if Baer were now in earnest about this business of training, as some of the writing fraternity suggest (perhaps with tongue in cheek), the Livermore Lothario has trod too long the primrose path to permit his reaching the peak of condition in the short time remaining before the fight.

Baer has been as improvident as the proverbial grasshopper, and we strongly suspect he is making a final effort to salvage a nest egg for his declining years, rather than attempting a ring comeback. His manner of living has sapped the vitality of the one-time cold killer who annihilated the lumbering Carnera.

• • •

BAER is striking while the iron is hot. Another year and the pot will be boiling for a Louis-Braddock get-together, while Maxie, at his present rate of decline, then may be on the retired list.

The playboy will taste much leather, we fear, for Shufflin' Joe is aiming to make an example of him. Louis, for some reason or other, considers Baer the cream of the heavyweight crop, and to impress the Doubting Thomases who look with supercilious eye on his impressive strings of wins, he intends to let Max have "the works."

The dusky Detroiter has all of the virtues and none of the faults of previous ring kings. He has youth—he's just 21—and is in tip-top condition; packs a dynamite-laden punch and combines the boxing skill of Corbett with the killer instinct of Dempsey.

We just can't conceive how the ebony flash can miss annexing the crown within the next year.

Forgotten Millions Lie in U. S. Vaults, Awaiting Rightful Owners

LONG before the "forgotten man" was ever remembered, "forgotten money" was one of Uncle Sam's and the nation's bankers' biggest headaches.

It's hard to believe, isn't it, that even since money has been hard to get, Americans have a habit of laying it aside and then promptly forgetting about it. But it's true. Because of this carelessness, or absent-mindedness, or whatever you want to call it, several hundred millions of dollars today lie unclaimed in vaults throughout the country.

This colossal forgetfulness of the "thrifty" American public has put banks to great expense in establishing special departments to locate the rightful owners of these unclaimed millions.

• • •

THERE are many reasons why much of this mislaid wealth has never been claimed.

During wartime, many patriotic Americans sank their savings in Liberty Bonds. Then, not having a clear understanding of the investment they had made, they proceeded to put their bonds in an attic trunk and forget about them.

Many doughboys, before leaving for overseas, deposited their savings in banks near their training camps. Some of these lads never returned from the battlefields. Many who did return forgot about their deposits.

Scores of new fathers, bursting with pride at the birth of a son, have deposited money in the bank to provide for Junior's education. When the parental thrill wore off, the passbook was stored somewhere and forgotten.

People who secretly have accumulated quite a bit of wealth have passed away without having had the forethought to provide a will. In other cases, heirs cannot be found.

Exhibited, in the picture above, is $200,000 in $5 and $10 bills. More than 600 times this amount of money lies, forgotten, in vaults throughout the country, while Uncle Sam, the courts, and banks advertise for its rightful owners or heirs.

ACCORDING to the public administrator of New York City, unclaimed estates amounting to $634,092 were handled in the year 1934. And this, mind you, occurred in a single city.

If not claimed in 20 years, unclaimed money becomes the property of the state although, after that time, an owner of any part of this sum will be paid if he can satisfactorily prove his claim.

Inactive savings or even checking accounts cause banks a great deal of trouble. Every so often they have to publish lists of depositors whom they have not been able to locate for five years.

It might not be a bad idea to scour the household for forgotten bonds and bankbooks. Uncle Sam, and banks in general, would be glad to co-operate with legitimate owners in a share-the-forgotten-wealth movement.

Race Meet Starts Saturday at Fast Panhandle Track

PANHANDLE, Aug. 22. — With more than 100 horses in the barns early this week, indications were that entries would set a record at the Southwest Race Meet, which will be held in Panhandle, Aug. 31 to Sept. 7 inclusive.

A car of 12 horses arrived by freight Monday from Loveland, Colo.

C. E. Deahl, president, returned home Monday from a month's racing in the north. He entered horses in meets at Billings, Great Falls, and Helena, Mont., Loveland, Trinidad and Pueblo, Colo. Previously he had been at Omaha, Neb., and other cities.

Deahl said that more than 100 horses would come here from the meets he had attended. Another 50 or 75 should come here from Oklahoma, according to advance reservations for stalls.

D. E. Hill of Hill & Hill, concession men, came here this week from his home at San Antonio and said he knew of at least 50 horses coming here from South Texas.

Supt. M. B. Davidson expects 250 to 300 horses to be in the Panhandle meet. Already he is worrying about plans to stable the horses, and it is believed that another barn or two will be built this week.

Never has there been such interest manifested in the Panhandle meet, and officials say this indicates that Panhandle has stepped up several notches in importance as a racing center.

The meet opens Saturday, August 31, and continues through the following Saturday. A record crowd is anticipated on Monday, Sept. 2, Labor Day. In years gone by, Labor Day usually set a record in attendance and no exception to the rule is expected this year.

Tuesday will be ladies day. All ladies will be admitted free that day, or at least for a small service charge of 10c or 15c.

Wednesday and Thursday have been set aside for Pampa and Borger days. Friday will be Amarillo and Panhandle days. Panhandle will close for the races on Friday, according to the president of the chamber of commerce.

The closing day will be Saturday, Sept. 7, and it is expected to draw a record crowd of horse lovers anxious to get a last glimpse at the races.

So great is the number of entries that it is expected eight or nine races a day will be run instead of six, as originally planned by the racing association.

Workmen have been busy at the track for weeks and Supt. Davidson said it is in ideal shape. Horses are being worked out daily, and one of the big pre-racing attractions is the daily running match races.

Racing fans will not be disappointed in making a visit to the Southwest Race Meet this year. They will find the best horses of the Southwest here and indications are that the fans will be here in increased numbers for each of the seven days.

This is the longest meet ever planned for Panhandle and is being staged in response to the demands of horse owners and fans.

You've heard of bogeymen Here, on a Pacific beach, a young lady plays the role, aided by a huge gargoyle of papier mache. She was just one of the paraders in a huge coast Mardi Gras carnival.

People now living will look back, after another forty years, and wonder what everybody was worried about.

The finish depends as much upon the start as it does upon the activities along the route you travel.

Huey Long Seems in Grim Earnest

If facial expressions mean anything, President Roosevelt had better prepare for the campaign of his career. THE PALO DURO CANYON

God with His infinite power,
Millions of years ago,
In some important hour,
Carved the Palo Duro.

He leveled the plains around it,
And capped it with a rim of stone,
Most any child can bound it,
CREATION; that is God's own.

In the center he placed great rocks,
And springs on the mountain side,
Then flowers and ferns and phlox,
And stately shading trees abide.

He placed meandering streamlets,
Flowing from side to side,
And many side canyons and inlets,
Controlling torrents and tide.

Vandals may attempt to destroy,
God's marvelous scenery Divine,
Oh; let future people enjoy
Palo Duro's wondrous design.
Was there ever before such beauty?
Such blending of tints and hue?
To preserve it now is man's duty,
May he to this trust be true.

The writer first saw this Canyon June 26th, 1882.

What Is Osteopathy?

"What is Osteopathy?" This question is asked many times of students of the osteopathic profession. When we investigate the matter, numerous interesting and educational phases of the subject are revealed.

Osteopathy is a complete system of rational medicine. It is not a fad, cult, nor a specialty. A. T. Still, who first gave it to the world in 1874, was a successful physician and surgeon of the so-called regular school. He had no idea then of doing away with the established practice of medicine. All he wanted to accomplish was to bring about a reform of medical teachings and to make them conform with the requirements of Nature. And his pronouncements concerning the fundamentals of the science which he initiated were so simple, plain, and so sensible that their appeal has always been irresistible to logical and well-ordered minds.

For instance, he said, "The body itself contains within itself all substances needful for its health and well-being." He thus argued, more than half a century ago, what medical science is just discovering and calling the "unity of immunity;" meaning that the human body has the facilities for the manufacture of its own serums, vaccines, and antitoxins and that it can produce them in ample quantities to meet any emergency without outside interference if given a fair chance to do so.

Another of Dr. Still's maxims was "the rule of the artery is supreme," emphasizing the fundamental principle that living cells function normally only as they are properly nourished and cleansed.

He was forever telling his students to "find it, fix it, and leave it alone," a simple command that was clearly understandable.

Osteopathy is the simplest of all therapeutic systems. It is the one most closely linked with Nature and thus is the most natural of all healing arts. And as it deals so directly with the first physical cause of disease, it is the most effective of medical sciences.

Technical osteopathy is wholly a matter of "applied mechanical common sense." Founded upon the sciences of anatomy and physics, it is squarely based upon the idea that the structural well being of the body machine is most fundamental to health.

Osteopathic physicians used to be called "bone-setters." They are not and never were "bone setters" any more than they are massagers or "rub doctors." Osteopathic manipulations are not concerned with "setting" bones at all. They are designed to move joints. Osteopathy then takes joints which have been robbed of their normal physical capacity and corrects them, restoring to the body the mechanical balance it depends upon. The osteopathic physician recognizes the effect of strain and other injury, incorrect posture, worry, faulty diet, age, overwork and other things in relation to health. Osteopathy includes the consideration of diseases of women and children, of eye, ear, nose and throat, and other special parts of the body and obstetrics. From the first, surgery has been a part of osteopathy.

In Booth's history of Osteopathy, Dr. Booth gives this complete definition:

"Osteopathy is that school of medical practice whose distinctive method consists in: (a) physical examination to determine the condition of the mechanical and functions of all parts of the human body; (b) specific manipulation to restore the normal mechanism and re-establish the normal functions; and (c) the adoption of all hygienic measures conducive to the restoration and maintenance of health.

A more recent definition, by Dr. C. B. Atzen, shows the contrast between osteopathy and the drug schools:

'Osteopathy is that system of healing which places the chief emphasis on the structural integrity of the body mechanism as being the most important single factor on maintaining the welfare of the organism in health and disease; whereas the drug schools place the chief emphasis on the chemical intake of the body as being the most important single factor in maintaining the welfare of the organism in health and disease."

The osteopathic physician is a mechanic of the human machine. His tools are his bare hands.—Teniculum of Los Angeles College.
